

THE GENERAL CON: CENSUS

REBECCA O'CONNOR

YOUR NUMBER IS UP

1 Chron 21:1

And Satan stood up against Israel, and provoked David to number Israel.

KJV

Here is a little mathematical equation for calculation:

1 Chron 21:1 <minus> Gen 32:12 = ___?

To find the difference of this equation we must find out what Genesis and 1 Chronicles is saying:

Gen 32:12

And thou saidst, I will surely do thee good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot [לה לוא לוא] be numbered [ספר]for multitude. From Hebrew interlinear: I-Shall-do-good with-you and-I-place >> seed-of-you as-sand-of the-sea which not he-shall-be-numbered from multitude

This is not saying that the number cannot be tabulated but saying that it should not be enumerated from the multitude. The reference to the stars and dust shows the promise of multitude. The total from Abraham to the end of time is truly uncountable, since seed of Abraham include anyone coming to the Lord from any country.

When David gave the order to number Israel from Beer-sheba to Dan it made Joab wonder why God would sin against His own Word but followed what his king had ordered.

1. David let it be assumed that this was from God.
2. Joab knew that this was a well-known trespass.

Getting back to the equation:

[1 Chron 21:1] <minus> [Gen 32:12]

Satan's provocation minus God's Word = death.

Whenever we subtract God's Word from the equation, there is turmoil and death at the end. While God intends multiplication, Satan desires elimination. God, like any good general, is not going to kill his troops because a captain disobeyed. However the captain's disobedience can cause the destruction of many. God does not repay evil for an evil done and His vengeance is not what most understand:

Rom 12:19-21

Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord.

Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head.

Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

- Vengeance: ἐκδίκησις vindication
- Repay: ἀνταποδίδωμι recompense, render, repay

Vindication is the Lord's, and He will recompense it. This is not payback but paid for. Jesus recompensed us all at the cross where sin was put to death. Abraham Lincoln said that to destroy an enemy, make him your friend. God did just that. Here is God's vengeance/recompense:

1 John 2:2

And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world.

1 John 4:10

Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.

Propitiate is to conciliate or reconcile. God's vengeance is to reconcile us to Him. Our base human nature in its anger likes to think that GOD'S GONNA GIT 'EM! Yes, He will leave the 99 to go after the stray, but we want Him to at least break the "strayer's" legs [a Baptist legend not in Scripture] while secretly hoping it hurts like heck! Yet look at the heart of the Shepherd:

Luke 15:4-6

4 What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?

*5 And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing.

6 And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, saying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.

God repays evil with good just as He tells us to do. Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; and God did if he thirst, give him drink, and God did, but He also went about healing all of their diseases and wounds and forgave them at the cross. God practices what He preaches and never asks us to do what He is not willing to do himself. We know that David was so zoned onto his sin of numbering that he sincerely believed God was his punisher. Most of us have been zoned there, and done that a time or two. Instead of seeking God he went to Gad, the seer, to get the remedy. Gad, not God, gave him a choice of three maladies from which to pick as punishment. It was like the Monty Hall's "Let's Make A Deal". David picked the wrong door and got the booby prize. Actually, when dealing with Satan, there is no right door from which to choose. Satan's DNA is all over this. [Remember that throughout the OT Satan was viewed merely as a nuisance, but Jesus exposed Satan as the tempter, thief and destroyer in the NT. Jesus showed the divorce of kingdoms and gave God back His truer identity. This is why we see the discrepancy between 1Chron 21:1 and 2 Sam 24:1, but I leave this for you to compare: John 10:10-11, Mt 18:14, James 1:13-15 and request my book Reconciliation for Dummies. Also read Jesus' prayer in John 17, and you will understand the purpose for which Jesus came which was to reveal the true identity of God that had otherwise been distorted.]

Numbering/census has been at the root of much genocide throughout history. Let's look at a few:

Ex 1:7

And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them.

Ex 1:9

And he [Pharaoh] said unto his people, Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we:

Ex 1:15-16

And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives, of which the name of the one was Shiphrah, and the name of the other Puah: And he said, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, and see them upon the stools; if it be a son, then ye shall kill him: but if it be a daughter, then she shall live.

Today we call this partial birth abortion. The baby is ready to be delivered alive and even may be partially out of the mother's body, which is partial birth. They must be killed before full delivery rather like the murder of the Pharaoh's order. As a matter of fact when Israel gained Jerusalem back in 1967, they were no longer trodden by the gentile nations [read Luke 21:24-28]. From Luke's Scripture we are right at the cusp of Jesus' return. So what did Satan do that same year 1967? The first legal abortion was in Colorado Springs 1967. Israel followed shortly. Coincidence? Of the three Abrahamic seed, the Muslims are the only ones who do not to abort their babies except for the life of the mother.

Satan and the Muslims agree that the U.S. and Israel are to be wiped off the face of the earth, and they are keeping their numbers up. We are being slowly eliminated through abortion, and now our government is going to trim down more numbers with a healthcare program that will aid this. For all of these things Satan wants the numbering and calculations put into place. [You will see a greater penetration of Muslims in our nation, and our government will protect their children's rights to pray while stifling Christians and prohibiting ours. This is due to the fear factor.]

Satan is behind this mass murder to keep the troop's number down. In Exodus we see an event about to take place through a deliverer, Moses. Moses would have been killed along with all Hebrew baby boys but was saved through the water in a basket sealed with pitch. God drew Moses from the water, and Moses took his people through the parted water to safety.

The earth began to groan for a deliverer right before Jesus was born. Satan was on the lookout. A proud and haughty Satan will not think to look in a barnyard for a King. Jerusalem would be the place to look for the King. When the wise men showed up in that capitol city, Satan must have missed their meeting with Herod. It was when Herod became unglued after they left and the smell of blood was in the water that the shark was aware. Satan probably paced back and forth with Herod waiting for the wise men to return. Of course as time passed and Herod knew that he had been duped, Satan planted the slaughter of babies in his ear.

Matt 2:16-18

16 Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had diligently inquired of the wise men.

17 Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying,

18 In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

Satan has been on many wild goose chases throughout history. From the time of Jesus' death and resurrection, the enemy has been in a tizzy constantly on the lookout for the next big event knowing that time grows short.

We are in the times that require sober watching. We are in the number of this generation...our number is up. Get up and get ready to count for something!

COMMON CENSUS

Matt 24:42

Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

KJV

Common sense tells us to be watchful of the events taking place because they are significant to the Lord's return. We know that numbering is significant to the conspiracy of kingdoms all under the influence of Satan whether they seem tame or not. What was called numbering in the OT is referred to now as the census. There is nothing common or ordinary about a census. That being said, we need to have some common census ourselves by calculating some comparisons from history as examples.

End times are unfolding before our eyes, and while the census has been practiced for years having various reasons under various leaders it has been a smoking gun that we have not regarded anything more than statistics. It is possible that a census is merely a bullet in a gun while the aim is in the hands of the shooter and the target "a people". We can look as Hitler took aim with the bullet of the Nazi Census and the target...the Jews. Satan smelled an event with the Jews multiplying for the gathering together of their homeland in 1948. Of course Satan does not know the specifics but watches the Jews' numbers grow. How to prevent the activity of the Jews is to actively begin the process of elimination beforehand. Hitler was a willing specimen and eager for power. Even though the war started in with the invasion of Poland, Sept. 1, 1939 and ended in 1945 with these statistics for the largest slaughter being Jews:

*5.7 million (78%) of the 7.3 million Jews in German dominated Europe perished in the war.
2.5 million from within the USSR etc.*

Yet God rallied the Jews with strength to take their land and become a nation just three short years after Satan's holocaust of thinning the troops. Satan cannot stop what is predestined to happen. Even in this we see Satan as the destroyer and God as the restorer.

Goetz Aly and Karl Heinz Roth's 1984 publication was published as The Nazi Census: Identification and Control in the Third Reich was written originally as a pointed intervention into a political issue of the time: plans for a national census. Aly and Roth joined an anti-census campaign concerned with the fact that census data, collected for only scientific purposes and collective analysis, was in reality passed off to community authorities as a way of tracking more personal information.

The census [numbering] plan was challenged and in 1983, when a Federal Court decree enhanced the transparency of information use, by preventing the transfer of census information to administrative authorities "and had put in place stringent data protection laws". Although, when Obama brought the census under the control of the White House the power to re-draw district lines, and thus decide which voters vote where, was substantial. Legislatures have gained infamy by creating "gerrymandered" districts, ones in which helpful voters are drawn into districts, and unfriendly ones are dumped next door. Because the outcome of the census data can translate into political power and partisan opportunities, it is not surprising that the method used to generate census data would interest lawmakers.

[Gerrymander: the dividing of a state, county, etc., into election districts so as to give one political party a majority in many districts while concentrating the voting strength of the other party into a few districts as possible. Named after Gerry Gov. of Mass who so tampered with his district that it looked like a salamander.]

The census also determines the outcome of the Electoral College, which chooses the president. If one party were to control the census, it would naturally try to wrangle its hold on political power.

"The results of the census are also enormously important in another way -- the allocation of federal funds. Theoretically, a political party could disproportionately steer federal funding to areas dominated by its own members through a skewing of census numbers... Joseph Stalin said: 'Those who cast the votes decide nothing. Those who count the votes decide everything.' The same principle applies to the census. Since one or the other party will always be in power at the time of the census, it is vital that the out-of-power party at least be able to observe the process to make sure it isn't being stacked in favor of the party in power. This will be difficult for the GOP since I suspect Democrats will control both houses of Congress for the entire Obama first term," said. FOX News

The 2010 Census is on its way. To what extent is it pointed? Does this administration have a target? This is the question of population science and this administration has said that, "science will take her proper place". Censuses, family planning, genetics and material welfare schemes all figured in historical reflection of the Nazi vision of "the racial state." The question of whether these practices have been ethically polluted in their use by the Nazi state remains of great consideration with the political environment change in which abortion rights, stem cell research, and the dismantling of the welfare state are pressing political concerns. But I will go farther. My ears tuned in to the changing of hands as Obama entrusted the census bullet into the hands of ACORN. Stalin's words hauntingly return,

[SEE ADENDUM]

"Those who cast the votes decide nothing. Those who count the votes decide everything." We should make it a policy never to entrust a loaded gun in the hands of a nut. What is the target or how many are the targets? It takes more ammunition to complete the changing of an entire nation, who merely made the arguments for change in her past, while putting in concessions to bring it about more gradually. Obama's problem is moving at the speed of lightning, so he is catching the thunder which follows. Let me tell you something that I recently discovered, and I encourage you to check for yourself:

Edwin Black, author of "IBM and the Holocaust: The Strategic Alliance Between Nazi Germany and America's Most Powerful Corporation" wrote:

When Adolf Hitler came to power in 1933, most of the world saw a menace to humanity. But IBM saw Nazi Germany as a lucrative trading partner. Its president, Thomas J. Watson, engineered a strategic business alliance between IBM and the Reich, beginning in the first days of the Hitler regime and continuing right through World War II.

This alliance catapulted Nazi Germany to become IBM's most important customer outside the U.S. IBM and the Nazis jointly designed, and IBM exclusively produced, technological solutions that enabled Hitler to accelerate and in many ways automate key aspects of his persecution of Jews, homosexuals, Jehovah's Witnesses, and others the Nazis considered enemies.

Custom-designed, IBM-produced punch cards, sorted by IBM machines leased to the Nazis, helped organize and manage the initial identification and social expulsion of Jews and others, the confiscation of their property, their ghettoization, their deportation, and, ultimately, even their extermination.

Recently discovered Nazi documents and Polish eyewitness testimony make clear that IBM's alliance with the Third Reich went far beyond its German subsidiary. A key factor in the Holocaust in Poland was IBM technology provided directly through a special wartime Polish subsidiary reporting to IBM New York, mainly to its headquarters at 590 Madison Avenue.

And that's how the trains to Auschwitz ran on time.

Thousands of IBM documents reviewed for the first edition of my book 'IBM and the Holocaust,' published early last year and focused mainly on IBM's German subsidiary, revealed vigorous efforts to preserve IBM's monopoly in the Nazi market and increase contracts to meet wartime sales quotas.

Since then, continued research and interviews have uncovered details, described here for the first time, of IBM's work for the Nazis in Poland through the separate subsidiary and of the Polish subsidiary's direct contact with IBM officials on Madison Avenue.

Documents were obtained from IBM files shipped to NYU for processing and from scores of other archival sources here and abroad. Not a single sentence written by IBM personnel has been discovered in any of the documents questioning the morality of automating the Third Reich, even when headlines proclaimed the mass murder of Jews.

No machines were sold to the Nazis-only leased. IBM was the sole source of all punch cards and spare parts, and it serviced the machines on-site-whether at Dachau or in the heart of Berlin-either directly or through its authorized dealer network or field trainees. There were no universal punch cards. Each series was custom-designed by IBM engineers not only to capture the information going in, but also to tabulate the information the Nazis wanted to come out.

Once the U.S. Entered the war in December 1941, Germany appointed a Nazi devoted to IBM, Hermann Fellinger, as enemy-property custodian. He maintained the original staff and managers of Watson Business Machines, keeping it productive for the Reich and profitable for IBM. The subsidiary now reported to IBM's Geneva office, and from there to New York. The company was not looted, its leased machines were not seized. "Royalties" were remitted to IBM through Geneva. Lease payments and profits were preserved in special accounts. After the war, IBM recovered all its Polish profits and machines."

Since the war, IBM, having left Madison Avenue for new headquarters in suburban Armonk, has obstructed, or refused to cooperate with, virtually every major independent author writing about its history, according to numerous published introductions, prefaces, and acknowledgments.

But silence cannot alter the historical documentation. A tangle of subsidiaries throughout Europe helped IBM reap the benefits of its partnership with Nazi Germany. After all, "business" was IBM's middle name.

Now I was curious as to who received the contract for the 2010 census and actually found it on IBM's site:

"The U.S. Census Bureau has awarded IBM (NYSE: IBM) Global Business Services a contract to provide data tabulation and dissemination services in support of the 2010 Census and other key Census Bureau surveys. The contract is designed to expedite data assessment, offer more flexibility in analysis, and improve the usability of Census information for citizens and policymakers. The value of the contract is $89.5 million over 9 years.

The program includes data processing of the individual household responses collected by the Census Bureau during the 2010 Census, producing data used for Congressional redistricting and the distribution of federal entitlement funds. In addition, the contract will include updates to the Census Bureau's primary Internet-based data dissemination program, the American FactFinder system (www.factfinder.census.gov). The Census Bureau data has numerous uses, including tracking of demographic trends across the country down to very small geographical areas."

But it gets better if you read more from CBS News:

"Minnesota Rep. Michele Bachmann told the Washington Times that she and her family will not be fully filling out the 2010 census forms. Bachmann, a Republican, said her family will only be indicating the number of people in the household, because 'the Constitution doesn't require any information beyond that.'

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, Bachmann may be in trouble if she fails to fill out the entire census. Spokeswoman Shelly Lowe told the Washington Times that anyone over the age of 18 must fill out all the questions and any such person who refuses to answer "any of the questions" faces a $5,000 fine." CBS News

With companies whose loyalties lie with the "Almighty Buck" there is no allegiance to any particular people, be they relatives or neighbors. The $5,000 is like blackmail if we do not comply. [The fine is actually no less than $100 and not to exceed $5000.]

Aside from the tabulators and calculators came some other large companies who helped Hitler for the advancement of their gain:

The year following the end of World War II, GE stood accused of criminal conspiracy with Krupp, a major German munitions firm. Their partnership artificially raised the cost of U.S. defense preparations while helping to subsidize Hitler's rearmament of Germany. The arrangement continued even after Nazi tanks smashed into Poland.

GE was not alone among U.S. big business in having cordial, profitable arrangements with the corporations of Nazi Germany. Kodak, DuPont and Shell Oil are also known to have had business dealing with Germany. Due to a recent reparations case, the activities of General Motors and Ford are the most well known. And the cases are instructive:

GM and Ford, through their subsidiaries, controlled 70 percent of the German automobile market when war broke out in 1939. Those companies "rapidly retooled themselves to become suppliers of war materiel to the Germany army," writes Michael Dobbs in the Washington Post.

"When American GIs invaded Europe in June 1944, they did so in jeeps, trucks and tanks manufactured by the Big Three motor companies in one of the largest crash militarization programs ever undertaken," observes Dobbs. "It came as an unpleasant surprise to discover that the enemy was also driving trucks manufactured by Ford and Opel — a 100 percent GM-owned subsidiary — and flying Opel-built warplanes."

The major U.S. automakers (including Chrysler) established multinational operations as early as the 1920s and 1930s, locating plants in Germany, eastern Europe and Japan.

Today, with corporate power magnified by the global economy and its international trade agreements, it is worthwhile to remember the behavior of "American" corporations at a time when fascism threatened to plunge the world into an anti-human chasm. A historical reflection of 60 years ago serves as a valid reminder of corporate power and greed that reaches beyond national borders or patriotic allegiances.

Writing about the Big Three automakers' dealings with Nazi Germany, Bradford Snell observed: "these firms retained the economic and political power to affect the shape of governmental relations both within and between these nations in a manner which maximized corporate global profits. In short, there were private governments unaccountable to the citizens of any country yet possessing tremendous influence over the course of war and peace in the world."

Bringing corporate power to account remains the mission of the world's citizens today, however, as it happens our tax dollars are bailing them out even as I write this. What is our government thinking? Maybe I should re-phrase to ask what is our government planning? Are you beginning to gather some "common census" from these reports? I am, but numbering or census has always held a curiosity for me. Because God did not want our numbers in the hands of the enemy, and the fact that Satan wants to calculate us is very telling. God already knows everything there is to know about us, but Satan is looking into our private lives when we are unaware. The enemy is doing research on each of us as was done to Job. Look:

Job 1:7-11

7 And the LORD said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the LORD, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it. [Walking to and fro, up and down...riiiight. How vague is this answer? Satan was viewing Job, trying to get a handle on him, but that old devil could not fool God. God cut to the chase.]

8 And the LORD said unto Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God, and escheweth evil?

9 Then Satan answered the LORD, and said, Doth Job fear God for nought?

10 Hast not thou made an hedge about him, and about his house, and about all that he hath on every side? thou hast blessed the work of his hands, and his substance is increased in the land.

[Notice all the information Satan gathered just strolling to and fro, up and down?]

Satan's general con census:

1. Job's faith
2. Where Job lived
3. That he had a hedge or a home protection alarm installed
4. Who installed the hedge and alarm system
5. The entire property of Job, which included:
 - Barns, sheds and all out buildings
 - Relatives living on said property
 - Animals and yielding fields
 - Job's blessings or financial picture

You see Satan has a form of census too. This enemy is not just going to and fro but seeking who may be devoured and taken! The enemy has to watch us in order to assess our predictability just as any stalker would. The government has gotten good at assessing data to learn our predictabilities. If forensics can locate a culprit with a single piece of doggy dander, how much more difficult is it for the government to find what it wants about us through our television remotes, computers, mail and email, our purchases, voting registrations, virtual mapping, social security, credit cards, satellite and any amount of information that we have given or not given.

Knowing the time is short requires knowing the number of troops to face at the time he/she will be cast to earth. Satan takes a census along the "to and fro" road for liquidating opposers of the world system, for Satan is the prince of this world. The enemy has to know certain things about God's children like: where and how many.

I have written in the book Star Wars: The Reality that information is the new power. The country with the best satellite information is the most powerful. Information and the census of where we are and how many we are, is mandatory, and after that our predictability is crucial.

I have looked at some of the 2010 potential questions and they seem rather mild and non-threatening. Satan's calculation of Job is about the same information that the government wants plus our phone numbers. They do not need your voting preference since the voter's registration takes care of that. They want the demographics of where these voters are located and their count. The most valued intention is to know where you are. They already have a record of everything you do. They do not need to put a chip in your hand or forehead because you already compute through your credit card or social security. You can be tracked by your cell phone. The cellular system is designed to track cell phone locations by "triangulating the signal between two or more cell phone towers. By comparing the relative signal strength from multiple towers a general location of a phone can be determined. The accuracy of this type of location may vary from a few hundred yards to several miles depending on distance from cell towers and propagation variables. Newer phones equipped with GPS receivers can pinpoint your phone's location to within a few feet."

Exactly who is using this capability, how legal it is, whether laws are being respected, whether secret government surveillance is being practiced, and how much private information is being sold is not known. It is clear, however, that this capability exists.

So you can run, but you cannot hide. Somewhere a government is watching. With the virtual access using satellites they can pan through a window and see what lies upon your table! Have you ever thought while you were watching television that it was watching back? What about the phone? How private are your calls really? I have used the virtual map going from space to earth, to continent, state, county, town, neighborhood, ending at my own rooftop in a matter of seconds, but I do not have the equipment to which the governmental agencies have access.

I realize what a conspiracy theorist I must sound to the technologically challenged. However, I wrote in the book Are We There Yet some statistics I received online of the exponential society in which we live, and it was an eye opener.

For example, look how the digital technologies of the 1990s changed the relationship between man and his television. No longer do we watch TV without it watching back. Going to digital set-top boxes, satellite receivers and digital video recorders such as TiVo has allowed television sets to act as mini-computers. TVs can now process data, store it and transmit it to other machines. The new devices have obvious advantages, but they have other capabilities too. TVs equipped with the new technologies can, for the first time, monitor the people watching the screen.

Several companies, including Predictive, the firm that analyzes remote control clicks, are working on ways to mine all the data from your viewing habits in order to produce a detailed picture about you. David Burke, a writer and computer programmer, wrote a book on the subject called "Spy TV". It published some rather condemning inside conversations with executives pushing interactive television, whose concern for users' privacy is clearly overshadowed by their enthusiasm for targeted advertising dollars. But Burke discovered at a meeting of "media coalition" that the companies proposing an addressable TV-ad market are rather secretive about the whole business. "You don't want to talk to the press about any of this," one executive said at the meeting. "If some bad P.R. got out, whether it's true or not, it might take us a year to make it up." "Everyone nodded," Burke writes. "They all agreed they couldn't afford to make the same mistakes they had on the Internet -- rushing into a medium they didn't control, without a strategy in place, a back-up plan, just in case users found out about all those cookies." He adds that "companies who make interactive television are keen to talk about 'the coming digital revolution,' hoping viewers will forget about the one that has already happened. Interactive TV is really a digital counter-revolution, walling in the content that viewers can see, and handing control of their news and leisure time back to broadcasters.

Predictive can also tell whether there is more than one person watching the television. The company's software, which now sells for use in cable and satellite set-top boxes, builds digital profiles of each person regularly using a particular TV, and gives an analysis of these statistics from your TV habits producing a sketchy picture of your personality. Peter Mondics, Predictive's CEO, says that his software "can get to know you quite well. It can, for instance, suggest with surprising accuracy what you may want to watch on TV, and can also tell whether there is more than one person watching the television." But then, they do not call themselves Predictive for nothing! Rather than television it would be a-vision-telling.

Then we come to computers. Computers use satellite to gain access to Internet...or should I say enter-net! The Office of Management and Budget is considering reversing a nine-year ban (Bush administration) on using "cookies" to track users' preferences and interests on federal Web sites. But some privacy advocates say changing the policy for federal Web sites is troubling. If you check out the FBI's Most Wanted List, they say [privacy advocates], the government would know. If you want information from the CDC about pregnancy or AIDS, the government would know. "Big Brother" has the technology in place to literally be watching you.

Robert Siciliano, an author and Internet security expert, described cookies as the "cousin" to spyware, software installed on a computer that tracks information about users without their consent. Siciliano told FOX News: "Spyware, as we know, can be malicious and track everything we do -- every username, password and Web site we visit. The problem here is privacy advocates are concerned if government enables cookies on federal Web sites, then they could now merge into spyware. What's next?"

Judge Andrew Napolitano, FOX News' senior judicial analyst, said the potential policy change could be a violation of the Privacy Act of 1974, which regulates the "collection, maintenance, use and dissemination" of personal information by federal executive branch agencies. "It also prohibits the government from watching you while you browse a book in a library or getting copies of the books you take out of a library," Napolitano told FOX News.

OMB officials [Office of Management and Budget]: the executive agency that advises the President on the federal budget] told FOXNews.com that any change to the federal cookie policy would be in "full compliance" with the Privacy Act, and they said no decisions have been made as to when, if at all, the change will take effect. And of course we remember that Obama promised transparency, so we can trust that we will know of any changes...right?

OMB is considering "a three-tier advance that would track users over single and multiple Web sessions, either to analyze Web traffic statistics or to remember the data, settings and preferences unique to individual users".

A public comment period on the potential change has ended, while a timeframe for a final decision has not been set. This is where we misunderstand that it was "the comment period" that had ended, but the decisions are not based upon un-American Astroturf protests...right?

You should see all the places I go just via Internet getting news and data research. I may have "the powers that be" confused as to whether I am a Christian, Satanist or mad bomber! I may, in fact, be on the Obama list of opposition. [If you have pegged me as a Republican, you would be wrong. You see I started out as a Democrat then converted to the Republican Party, but in these days I see that above all things I am a citizen of the Kingdom of God period. I am independent of political parties, yet I vote my conscience using the rules of the Kingdom of God to measure my decisions and lead my vote.] The general consensus is that we are no longer private citizens. We are exposed to the watchers...the census gatherers...calculators and enumerators. They gather our actions to gain access to our thoughts. We are a predictable lot. We have gone from the good old U.S.A. to the U.S.S.A. United Socialist States of America. Obama wanted transparency, and he is getting it, but it is our transparency not the government's. Just as we did not fully comprehend the promises of "change", we also assumed what "transparency" intended of which Obama made reference. We live in glass houses while everything the government does behind closed doors.

MAKE YOUR LIFE COUNT

Matt 5:14-16

Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid.
Neither do men light a candle,
and put it under a bushel,
but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.
Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works,
and glorify your Father which is in heaven.
KJV

How do we, as Christians, adapt ourselves in a kingdom of darkness living in a glass house? The answer you have already read in Matt 5:14-16, you become a light. It is not scary living in a glass house if you become a beacon and lighthouse. But this I will tell you that if your light is dim due to some secret darkness be sure in knowing this, that “your sin will find you out” Num 32:23.

We fool ourselves into thinking we can portray Christianity in the public arena while living our reality behind closed doors. We are like Jonah in thinking we can allude God, but we cannot for He has the number of our hair. In other words, God has our number! We cannot bamboozle Him since He is omnipresent. We should be living up to the name Christian instead of finding loopholes away from righteousness.

22 The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light .

23 But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!

The watchers know and see what we do in private. They are seeing that Christians are not who they say they are and can be easily persuaded. The world will groom and polish one to be a “Pied Piper” to sound and look good if we do not look too closely that is. He tells us, from the data received, what we want to hear like a rehearsed parrot, “Polly wanna cracker?” Then whips out a few phrases of “change” as we envision the glory clouds rolling in. We did not notice the dark clouds in the distance. [A few of us did.]

The only solution that I can see, since we already live in a glass house, is not to cast stones, live the Word of God to the best of our ability, and when we err get under the blood of forgiveness. If sin is crouched at your door, rule over it. When Satan tempts you, resist it. Take whatever is left of that old man nature and let it die at the cross. Begin a new life “born again” and move in the spirit beyond the cross. You cannot be born again and live in the old man. It just is not possible. Born again means all the old things have passed away, and you are a new creature. Your mind is renewed. If you think the old man is dead because the brain waves show a flat line while the body continues to breathe on a respirator...PULL THE PLUG! Get off the fence post and become the living sacrifice you have read in Rom 12:1-2 “I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God.” Then no matter what, you will shed the light of the Kingdom of God for any who care to look. Actually that is pretty cool if you think about it for a moment. We can turn the tables on the secret viewers by secretly proselytizing them by our witness. If they want to look, give them something to see. Give them Jesus. Give them the Kingdom. We may never know how many people we will convert to the Kingdom...HALLELUJAH! This is the best counter attack of our stolen privacy. When we may not witness in public one fine day, let the public secretly view the witness. Ahhh yes, the channel they did not pay to view!

This happened in the days of persecutions if you have read Foxes Book of Martyrs. Soldiers leading Christians to the slaughter witnessed first hand the glory of their death walks to eternal victory. Envious of the faith they encountered, many of these soldiers put down their swords and walked the glory trail to die with the faithful. They, like Steven, loved not their lives to the death. This was the glorious light of faith that lit the way of many to conversion.

Two more important things are these:

1. If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it. For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul? For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works. Matt 16:24-27
2. And they overcame him [dragon] by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death. Rev 12:11

No one ever overcame the world by joining it. People feel like “if ya can’t beat ‘em join ‘em” because we equate safety with numbers or the majority. In God's Kingdom any one person is a majority when in agreement with the King and His Word. Look at the example of the four lepers:

2 Kings 7:3-8

3 And there were four leprous men at the entering in of the gate: and they said one to another, Why sit we here until we die?

4 If we say, We will enter into the city, then the famine is in the city, and we shall die there: and if we sit still here, we die also. Now therefore come, and let us fall unto the host of the Syrians: if they save us alive, we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall but die.

5 And they rose up in the twilight, to go unto the camp of the Syrians: and when they were come to the uttermost part of the camp of Syria, behold, there was no man there.

6 For the Lord had made the host of the Syrians to hear a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses, even the noise of a great host: and they said one to another, Lo, the king of Israel hath hired against us the kings of the Hittites, and the kings of the Egyptians, to come upon us.

7 Wherefore they arose and fled in the twilight, and left their tents, and their horses, and their asses, even the camp as it was, and fled for their life.

8 And when these lepers came to the uttermost part of the camp, they went into one tent, and did eat and drink, and carried thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went and hid it; and came again, and entered into another tent, and carried thence also, and went and hid it.

Four lepers who faced death on all sides risked going on the road of unpredictability. These four men, with the aid of the Lord, became a majority and got the booty without drawing a sword! In the Kingdom we are the majority taking captivity captive. The Syrians fled from fearful assumption, while four lepers took captivity captive. If a leper with a death sentence can do it, "Why sit we here and die?"

What about Gideon's army? God showed His miraculous power by eliminating troops. Not in the fashion of Satan but by sending them home!

Gideon sent out messengers to all Manasseh and the surrounding tribes to rally volunteers to Israel's cause (Judg 6:35). When Gideon's volunteers assembled, there stood about 32,000 citizen soldiers (Judg 7:1). Although there were 135,000 Midianites camped in a nearby valley, God directed Gideon to thin out the ranks. First the fearful and afraid were sent home while only 10,000 remained. Gideon's band was now outnumbered about 13 to 1!

"There are still too many," God told Gideon. "Bring them down to the water, and I will test them for you there" (7:4). Those who lapped the water with their hands, never taking their eyes from the horizon, were retained in Gideon's army; those who got down on their knees to drink, forgetting to keep watch for the enemy, were dismissed. Now only 300 soldiers remained (Judg 7:5-7). The Midianites outnumbered Gideon's band 450 to 1! But God and Gideon had a secret plan!

Gideon divided the army into three companies. Then he gave each man a trumpet, a pitcher and a torch. At the appointed time, 300 trumpets blasted the air, 300 hands raised their pitchers and smashed them to bits, 300 burning torches pierced the darkness, and 300 warriors cried, "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon" (Judg 7:19-21).

The Midianites were thrown into panic. In the confusion, some committed suicide or killed their comrades. The remaining soldiers fled. AMAZING!

Notice:

- those who were fearful were of no use
- those who were not watchful were of no use

Valor has nothing to do with size as we can see in the account of David versus Goliath. The miraculous is not dependant upon multitude but in multiplying as we recall from the two fish and five loaves feeding thousands with leftovers. Those who are watching the times without fear are the winning combinations set for the miraculous.

Do not think to make curtains to draw and shut out the light for the fear of the glass house. Let your light shine. This country as well as many are in the process of shaking even more than they have been, leaving the fearful stranded of what to do next. They will be drawn to your light house of hope, so shine on, Friend, shine without fear. As in Gideon's army, we are the Gospel light in earthen vessels:

2 Cor 4:6-9

6 For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

7 But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.

8 We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair;

9 Persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed;

God is going to pour out His spirit alongside of the many distresses that will hit in our nation. Those who are seeking Him now have been getting enlightenment and pro-vision in preparation for these times. God has been showing me many things from my youth. He did not have me to share any of this at the time given, and believe me, I did not share this but with very selective people. I did not always understand the things He was showing me. As a matter of fact I seem to get pieces of the revelation uncovered and understood bit by bit as time unfolds:

Prov 25:2

It is the glory of God to conceal a thing: but the honour of kings is to search out a matter.

God gave me a panoramic view of an event and the condition of our nation in the future. We are getting close to what God revealed to me. I am a seeker searching out what He has given me. Each day that I make myself available He has something to reveal. With me, He starts with a question but makes me search Him for the answer in His Word. His questions always make me hungry for the answers...ALWAYS!

Ps 25:14-15

14 The secret of the LORD is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant.

15 Mine eyes are ever toward the LORD; for he shall pluck my feet out of the net.

Fear ירא reverence, morally reverence

What does it mean to reverent God? It is the kind of respect that is tinged with awe, worship and reverence. These definitions we know from any good sermon, yet when given celestial thought to it, which is too high for us, we think this means our church attendance and songs we sing in a song service, but it is so much more. The best way I can describe it would be better put into the terrestrial thought like this:

Picture someone who has such respect for a person that he/she quotes "that one" often. He/she tries to emulate the "admired one", seeks approval from "that one" and are at "that one's" disposal. The "admired one" becomes a template by which he/she measures everything. In other words I am talking about an adoring fan who has "that one's" poster on his/her wall, and not just one but many in all poses. Wherever "that one" is, is where he/she wants to be. He/she waits with anticipation by the phone for "that one" to call. Time stands still in the presence of "that one", because he/she does not want the moment to pass so quickly. The reverence becomes so strong that we cannot separate our thoughts from those of "that one". This is the relationship I'm talking about.

Do you abide in the presence of God being giddy with love? Do you wake in the morning thinking, "Oh, you're here." I have that schoolgirl feeling when I wake and cannot get to my lap top soon enough to hear what "He" has to say. [I have all versions of the Bible with many Bible reference dictionaries and concordances in Hebrew and Greek...in other words all my "digging tools" in my lap top. Getting into my tools is like getting all ready for a date.] "Where will we go today?" I say. I get goosebumps! If you can get goosebumps without a praise team and congregations whooping it up around you, but just you and "That One alone" IT'S GOD! You have found the secret place of the most high.

You might say, "Well I'm not one for much emotion." Then I will tell you that you have never been in love and had those butterflies deep inside your gut or that deep intimacy of becoming one with another. Being in love with Jesus is that same sensation as experiencing that first love. Many generally treat their relationship with God as if they are an old married couple doing their separate things. Some of us need to renew our vows and bring the spark back to our relationship, and if you have never had those feelings then you do not know your bridegroom. What I am talking about is not one-sided. God is excited about my excitement! He cannot wait to tell me secret things because He just plain loves my reaction! This is true. I feel every morning that He has been waiting for me to wake up, "Aren't you going to get up?" When we go to church together, it feels more like handholding admiration than the unrestrained excitement I feel when it is just the two of us.

I hate the thought of disappointing Him as I have felt on many occasions. He gets over it faster than I do. There are also the quiet secure times of just resting in Him. These are times of not much enthusiasm, but the warmth of His presence is my comfort. Those are my melting times where I melt into Him and feel His hug tightly around me. The times that I am unreasonable I feel Him less, but then I would not be around me then either, so I try not to become unreasonable.

Do not envy my relationship. Go after your own! Why sit ye there and pine?

The information that I have written is not to scare you, but to show you that you and I cannot nor should we count on this government. If you do, you will be terribly shaken, frustrated and faint in your mind. Why sit we here and die? We serve a mighty God. What you fear you make room for. If you fear God you will make room for him. You will abide by His Words and live according to His purpose. If you fear what is coming upon the world you will make room for it by spending time consumed with worry and anxiety. You will either be rehearsing the greatness of God or the greatness of the turmoil at hand. We will make our choice and our choice will make us.

I have learned that being a democrat is unfulfilling, being a republican is frustrating, and being an American is to grieve, BUT being a child of the Kingdom is without limitation. Being in the Kingdom is exhilaration in the midst of chaos. Enthusiasm for the times unfolding has replaced fear of what may be. Or better yet, to quote the four lepers again: "Why sit we here and die?" Dare to risk yourself for the Kingdom. Dare to be fearless. Remembering that fearless is not the same as confrontational, but is taking a stand with the banner of courage, integrity and valor in the Lord.

I have been a campaigner for years. I started with Reagan and ended up in the campaign of my life with the King of kings. Here, have a button!

ADDENDUM

Since the writing of this book and continued bad press, the Census Bureau has cut all ties with ACORN. Shortly after this, congress cut funding. However ACORN workers may apply individually to work for the 2010 census. There is always a way around the public's notice.
